Dear Friend,

It's hard to believe we're approaching the anniversary of the tornadoes in Middle Tennessee and the start of the COVID-19 pandemic. During the past year we've made dramatic shifts in the way we deliver our hunger relief services to provide food as safely and efficiently as possible.

Second Harvest Food Bank of Middle Tennessee was able to adapt and expand our outreach programs to meet the urgent need because you choose to give. This caring community has come together to help make sure our most vulnerable neighbors can access needed meals and groceries. On behalf of these children, families, and seniors, thank you.

Local seniors are always on my mind during the cold winter. The added cost of an increased utility bill can push fixed incomes to their breaking points. I hope you'll flip through this issue of Table Topics to meet just a handful of the older neighbors you're helping.

We can look forward to brighter days ahead because we know people like you care so much. Here at Second Harvest, we continue to look for new and better ways to share nutritious food. We're also adapting our events to safely engage with you. Please stay tuned!

I can't thank you enough for the trust you place in Second Harvest to alleviate hunger in Middle and West Tennessee. You're truly changing lives for the better.

All my best,

Nancy Keil
President & CEO

Michael Says a Prayer of Thanks for You

Countless older adults like Michael are giving thanks for you right now.

"Expenses seem to always go up during this time of year," he explains. "But it's not like you have more money to spend."

Like many seniors, Michael relies on a fixed income. That means when the temperature drops and utility bills go up, his monthly budget becomes more strict.

This is a real problem. Michael already faces a number of health difficulties. He was injured at his old security job, has suffered multiple heart attacks, and underwent back surgery. Good nutrition is vital to his well-being.

"Lots of people here will be praying for you around their tables — including mine. Thank you."

"I'm supposed to eat healthy food, but have you seen how expensive some of that good-for-you food is?" Michael says.

Fortunately, Michael learned about Second Harvest's Mobile Pantries. One of our trucks delivers a variety of groceries to the Family Center at Maury Hills Church in Columbia. The pantry has certainly bolstered his positive attitude:

"It's easy to get down on yourself and your situation ... but then you come to something like this, and you can't help but feel good. Good things are happening here. The food here is so good! I think because it is given with a lot of love."

Your support has made a significant difference in Michael's life — and helps share hope with other people who are struggling in the wake of the pandemic.

Michael shares his gratitude on behalf of everyone who's having a hard time affording groceries right now.

"You are appreciated," he says. "Lots of people here will be praying for you around their tables — including mine. Thank you."

'I believe it's a responsibility to help'

Joanne Flanagan knows what it's like to be hungry at home. When her family fell on hard times, she and her siblings were grateful for the free meals they received at school.

"I understand how hard it is for students to learn when their belly is growling," says Joanne, a teacher in Rutherford County. "It's a challenging time for many with schools meeting virtually, especially because many students rely on their two meals a day at school."

An annual donor for eight years, Joanne also began giving monthly in March. "Now that I am able to do my part, I believe it's a responsibility to help ensure that my neighbors don't go hungry," she says.

Will you join Joanne in making sure each of our neighbors has enough to eat every day? Become a Second Helpings monthly donor at secondharvestmidtn.org/monthly. Or upgrade your monthly donation today by calling Jennifer Jackson at 615-627-1583.

Your suggestions and comments for Table Topics are always appreciated! Please send an email to news@secondharvestmidtn.org.

Working Together to Fight Hunger

Community Partnerships Expand Capacity During Difficult Times

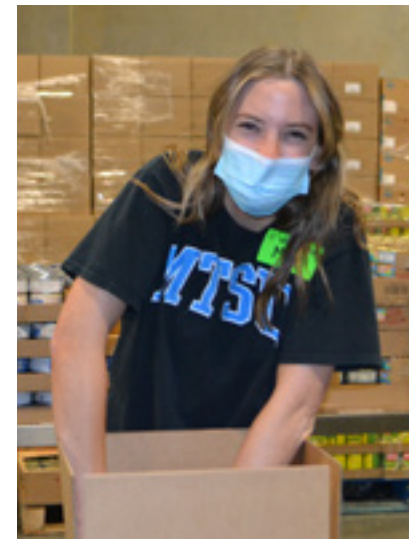

Librarians Give Back in New Ways

The Carroll County Library in Huntingdon isn't just a place where children can feed their imaginations with a good book. Since early last year, the library's been a place where children can access meals afterschool and during summer break. But as the pandemic set in, library staff wanted to do more.

They worked long hours and organized extra volunteers to offer a drive-thru distribution of Emergency Food Boxes from Second Harvest and boxes of fresh food from the USDA's Coronavirus Food Assistance Program. The library even opened its doors to receive community food donations.

Library Director Jennifer Thornton says, "To watch the faces of an entire family as the stress lines fade with every parcel of food handed over, to have children thank you for ensuring their next meal ... is something you just have to experience for yourself."

At a time when our Partner Agencies across the state are stretched thin, this small public library is stepping up to provide big relief to their neighbors in need.

Ole South Makes Service a Priority

Ole South, a home builder based in Murfreesboro, has been fighting hunger with Second Harvest since 2003. When we opened our Nacarato Distribution Center in Smyrna in 2018, Ole South staffers started volunteering there regularly, a practice that has continued throughout the pandemic.

"A lot of employment areas in Middle Tennessee are vulnerable to COVID-19," says Trey Lewis, Vice President of Sales. "We've been blessed at Ole South because everyone needs a place to live, but we need to assist in sustaining our communities as well. Partnering with Second Harvest is the way to do that."

To date, the Ole South team has helped provide more than 1 million meals to our neighbors in their time of need.

Reaching Underserved Populations

Since the pandemic began, immigrant families in Middle Tennessee have been hit especially hard with health concerns and economic hardship. Second Harvest partnered with Conexión Américas, a nonprofit dedicated to creating opportunities for Latino families in Nashville, to provide fresh produce boxes during weekly drive-thru distributions.

To keep families safe, the staff at Conexión's headquarters, Casa Azafrán, loaded the food boxes directly into waiting cars. Additionally, staff delivered food boxes to quarantined families or those without transportation. To date, more than 500 underserved families have benefitted from this partnership.

Learn more about our continued response to this difficult situation at secondharvestmidtn.org/covid19response.

Volunteers Advance the Mission in Difficult Times

Volunteers have long been the backbone of Second Harvest's efforts to fight hunger and feed hungry people. Volunteering looks different during the pandemic, and not only because of masks and social distancing. Longer lines for service mean volunteers are asked to dig deeper and give more of themselves.

In April we celebrate Volunteer Appreciation Month, and this year we want to say a very special thank you to the volunteers who've adapted to these unprecedented circumstances and continue to serve our clients with care.

Volunteers load a client's truck with fresh food at McGavock High School in Donelson. This distribution was the result of a partnership between Metro Nashville Public Schools and Second Harvest created through Mayor John Cooper's COVID-19 Food Security Working Group.

"Instilling the practice of volunteering into my children is extremely important to me," says Tapria. "I believe that people are created as rivers; that is, we should be continually giving and receiving." Since 2016, Tapria and her two daughters have volunteered at Family Night in Nashville and attended educational events like Hunger 101 to learn more about fighting hunger in the communities we serve.

With more food going out of our warehouses than ever, volunteers like Laura are instrumental in keeping our operation running smoothly. Here she stocks and organizes our shelves while also serving our Partner Agencies that come to restock their own pantries.

Kirsten Shares Her Gratitude

"We arrived at 2:15 a.m. I've never heard of it running out, but we don't take that chance these days," Kirsten says. She's waiting her turn at Second Harvest's Mobile Pantry that visits Woodbury United Methodist Church in Cannon County. "It's worth the wait."

Although the food distribution doesn't start until 9 a.m., Kirsten and others arrive early because they need the help so critically. You see, her life changed drastically after a serious fall.

Kirsten was an operator at a local waterpark before she sustained her injuries. Since she fell, she's had a knee replacement plus 20 additional surgeries.

"If I didn't get help from Second Harvest, I wouldn't be eating."

Her only income is disability assistance. She's fortunate to have help with some of her bills, but Kirsten doesn't qualify for SNAP (formerly known as food stamps) — her income is $7 over the limit.

"You can't afford to live and buy groceries," she says. "If I didn't get help from Second Harvest, I wouldn't be eating."

Kirsten lives in Smithville with four people who also have disabilities. She makes the long drive to Woodbury to bring home enough nutritious food for everyone.

She knows the Mobile Pantry is only able to deliver fresh, healthy food because you choose to give, and she was excited to share her thanks.

"We appreciate this very, very much," Kirsten says on behalf of herself and her housemates. "Thank you."

Giving That Reflects Your Values

When Patricia and Tim Gartland moved to Nashville from the Boston area, they began searching for local giving opportunities that reflect their commitment to community service. In addition to volunteering in our warehouse, the Gartlands decided to make Second Harvest part of their will.

"We revisited our estate plan after our move and wanted to place our remaining funds where we could make the most difference," Patricia says.

"Second Harvest has a long history of providing a safety net for children, families, and seniors who are food insecure."

Just like the Gartlands, you can make a real and lasting difference in your community by including Second Harvest as a beneficiary in your will or trust. To learn more, call Marian Eidson at (615) 627-1564.

Jackson County Family Appreciates Your Generosity

Charles worked as a long-haul trucker, driving across the country for more than 40 years. While he was on the road, his wife, Virginia, cared for their son, Donny Ray, who has special needs.

“ We really appreciate it. ”

Now retired and nearing 80, the couple is struggling to provide for themselves and Donny Ray. Their savings doesn't always cover the cost of monthly bills plus medical expenses.

“It gets hard,” Virginia says. “You get [an electric] bill of a few hundred dollars and then the water bill is $100. Then you have to pay for your medicine ... it's very, very tough.”

She, Charles, and their son have health problems that require costly care. It's vital that their meals contain the nutrients they need to thrive.

That's why they're so grateful they found out about the Second Harvest Mobile Pantry that visits the Jackson County Fairgrounds near their rural home.

Donny Ray always gets excited to see the Mobile Pantry truck pull up — his mom tells us he says it makes him really happy, and his dad shares his enthusiasm.

“You just look at that truck — the Second

Harvest truck — and think about how many people will be able to eat thanks to the food coming off there,” Charles says. “It's something. It's amazing. We really appreciate it.”

Your support brings relief to the people across Middle and West Tennessee who need it most. On behalf of neighbors like Charles, Virginia, and Donny Ray, thank you for sharing what you have with others.
